vs. 4.4 nationally

70%

Below Balanced

vs. 6-month benchmark

For Buyers

- Very limited selection — act on good listings fast
- Summer offers slightly more options than Q4/Q1

For Sellers

- Minimal competition — ideal time to list
- Low supply keeps upward pressure on prices

Sale-to-List Price Ratio: 101.9%

The typical home sold for above its asking price — up from 101.3% a year ago. Buyers are competing, not negotiating down.

Why It Matters

- Sellers receive more than list price on average
- Multiple-offer situations remain the norm
- Overpricing still risks longer time on market

Market Implications

- Buyers: Budget above asking — factor in 2–3% over list
- Sellers: Price accurately; well-priced homes attract bidding wars

NEW SUPPLY

New Listings: 132 Homes

Year-over-Year Change

-17.0% in June (132 vs. 159 last year) — but YTD new listings are up 7.0%, pointing to seasonal pullback, not structural decline.

Why It Matters

- Buyers: Summer window offers more listings than fall/winter
- Sellers: Less competition now — strong time to enter market
